

Executive Overview – Key Insights

Revenue Performance

- Total revenue reached 49.67M, reflecting strong overall business performance.
- Revenue experienced significant growth from 2023 to 2024, indicating successful expansion strategies.
- Growth stabilized during 2025, suggesting the business is entering a more mature stage.
- The company achieved an impressive 52.65% Year-over-Year growth rate.

Sales Activity

- More than 356K orders were processed, generating approximately 1 million units sold.
- Customers frequently purchase multiple products within a single transaction.
- The average order value of 139.44 demonstrates healthy customer spending behavior.

Channel Performance

- Revenue is evenly distributed across sales channels, reducing dependence on a single source.
- General Trade remains the largest contributor to revenue.
- Online and Mobile App channels collectively contribute a substantial share of total sales.
- Channel diversification strengthens business resilience and reduces risk.

Category Performance

- Health Science & Nutrition is the highest revenue-generating category.
- Infant Nutrition is the second strongest contributor.
- Nutrition-focused categories dominate overall sales performance.

- Customer demand is concentrated around health-related products.
-

Product & Category Performance – Key Insights

Product Portfolio

- The company manages a broad product portfolio with strong category diversity.
- Revenue is concentrated among a relatively small number of high-performing products.
- Top products contribute a significant portion of total revenue.

Category Contribution

- Health Science & Nutrition consistently contributes the largest revenue share.
- Infant Nutrition and Beverages remain important growth drivers.
- Category performance remains relatively stable over time, indicating predictable customer preferences.
- The category mix suggests long-term customer loyalty to core product lines.

Brand Analysis

- Nestlé is the leading revenue-generating brand.
- Brand revenue is concentrated among a few market-leading brands.
- Strong brand recognition appears to influence purchasing decisions.
- Premium nutrition brands consistently outperform many competing products.

Product Ranking

- Top-ranked products are primarily concentrated in nutrition-related categories.
- High-performing products should receive priority inventory allocation.
- Product ranking analysis highlights opportunities for targeted promotions and cross-selling strategies.

Strategic Product Insights

- Expanding successful nutrition product lines could accelerate revenue growth.
 - Inventory planning should prioritize top-performing categories and products.
 - Underperforming categories may require pricing, promotion, or assortment adjustments.
-

Customer Intelligence – Key Insights

Customer Base

- The business serves approximately 9K customers.
- Revenue per customer exceeds 5K, indicating strong customer lifetime value.
- Existing customers contribute significantly to overall revenue generation.

Customer Segmentation

- The Value Segment is the largest customer group.
- The Mainstream Segment is the second-largest segment.
- Premium customers represent a smaller audience but contribute strong revenue.
- Customer revenue is distributed across multiple segments, reducing dependency on a single customer group.

Customer Engagement

- Customers spend an average of 200 seconds per session.
- Visitors view approximately 6.5 pages per session.
- Engagement metrics indicate active product exploration before purchase decisions.
- High browsing activity suggests strong interest in the product catalog.

Customer Acquisition

- Customer acquisition has declined over time.
- Business growth increasingly depends on existing customers.

- Reduced acquisition rates may impact long-term expansion if not addressed.
- Additional acquisition-focused marketing campaigns could support future growth.

Customer Journey Funnel

- The business generates a high volume of customer sessions.
- A significant drop-off exists between browsing and completed purchases.
- Funnel analysis reveals opportunities to improve conversion rates.
- Even modest conversion improvements could produce substantial revenue gains.

Retention & Loyalty

- Repeat purchase behavior contributes significantly to overall performance.
 - Existing customers demonstrate strong engagement and loyalty.
 - Customer retention remains a key factor behind sustained revenue growth.
-

Business Recommendations

Sales & Revenue

- Continue investing in high-performing product categories.
- Focus on increasing Average Order Value through cross-selling and bundling strategies.
- Expand successful revenue channels while maintaining channel diversity.

Product Strategy

- Prioritize inventory for top-selling products.
- Increase promotional activities around leading categories.
- Optimize underperforming products through pricing and marketing adjustments.

Customer Strategy

- Strengthen customer loyalty and retention programs.
- Develop personalized offers based on customer segments.
- Create targeted campaigns for premium and high-value customers.

Digital Strategy

- Improve website and mobile app conversion rates.
- Simplify the purchase journey to reduce funnel drop-offs.
- Use customer behavior data to enhance personalization and recommendations.

Growth Strategy

- Increase customer acquisition efforts.
- Expand digital marketing initiatives.
- Leverage data-driven decision-making to identify new growth opportunities.